

Nikos Koutsoupas is an Associate Professor of Applied Informatics & Data Analysis in the Department of International & European Studies of the School of Social Sciences, Humanities & Arts, University of Macedonia. He graduated from the Department of Computer Science, North Carolina State University (NCSU), Raleigh NC, USA and a PhD holder from the Department of Applied Informatics of the University of Macedonia. He worked as a Computing Lab Assistant at the Department of Computer Science and the Faculty of Social Sciences & Humanities, as a Teaching Assistant at the School of Electrical & Computer Engineering (NCSU) and as a Database Programmer of an International Insurance Group (ERGO). He taught IT & Data Analysis courses at the School of NCO Administration of the Hellenic Air Force and at the Departments of General Studies & Marketing of TEI of Thessaloniki. As Lecturer/pd407, Assistant and Associate Professor taught at the Aristotle University and later at the University of W.Macedonia. He is married with five children.