Curriculum Vitaee

Isavella Kotini is a member of Laboratory Teaching Staff in the Department of Educational and Social Policy of the University of Macedonia. She received her Diploma in Computer Engineering and Informatics from the University of Patras, Greece, her Master of Education degree in Educational Leadership and Administration from the University of Nicosia, Cyprus and her Ph.D. degree from the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece. She has served as a teacher and an educational counselor for informatics in secondary education of Greece. Also, she has taught various courses in Computer Science, including Database Systems at the Department of Informatics of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Computer Graphics at the Department of Applied Informatics of the University of Macedonia, Information Systems at the Department of Informatics of the International Hellenic University, as well as Algorithms, Computation Theory-Formal Languages and Automata at the Department of Informatics of the Hellenic Open University. Her research interests include the areas of computational thinking, distance learning, collaborative learning and gamification, system modeling and analysis, formal methods, computation theory and automata, web-based collaborative applications. She has published more than 45 articles in refereed national and international conference proceedings, chapters in books, and journals, as well as she has participated in authoring schoolbooks and educational supporting material. She is a member of the Greek Computer Society and the Technical Chamber of Greece.